

CASEY THE INVENTOR

HARRY L. NEWTON'S

One-Act Comedy Sketches,
Monologues and
Dramatic Episodes

ACTOR AND THE JANITOR, THE      A Comic Novelty Act
CASEY THE INVENTOR      A Vaudeville Comic
CHATTER      Monologue for Males
COLLEGE CHUMS, THE      A Comedy Incident
DOWN IN PARADISE ALLEY      Comedy Sketch
FAMILY SECRET      Monologue
GIVE THE WOMEN A CHANCE      A Suffragette Monologue
IMMIGRANT INSPECTOR      A Comedy Talkfest
IN A CABARET      Comedy Crossfire
INVITATION TO THE BALL      Comedy Sketch
IZZY'S VACATION      A Summer Episode
JACK AND HIS QUEEN, A      A Comedietta
KEEP YOUR EYE ON THE BALL      Comedy Sketch
MEET MY WIFE      A Comedy Drama
MORNING AFTER THE NIGHT BEFORE,
THE      A Comedy Domestic Upheaval
PAIR OF PANTS, A      Talking Act
ROSE OF MEXICO, A      A Drama
SALLIE AND SAMMIE      A Comedy Skit
SPIRIT OF CAPTAIN KIDD, THE      Comedy
TWO GIRLS AND HIM      Comedy Sketch
WHAT EVERY WOMAN THINKS SHE KNOWS      Suffragette Monologue

Price, 25 Cents Each

M. WITMARK & SONS

Witmark Building, 144-146 West 37th Street, New York

FRANK DUMONT'S FAMOUS PLAYS

"A TRAMP AMONG CRANKS,"

Or

PERPETUAL MOTION.

Sketch for 6 males.

By Frank Dumont.

A laughable experience in a sanitarium of "eccentric" inventors. Contains an excellent low comedy part.

Price, 25 cents, postpaid.

"TWO WOMEN AND ONE MAN."

Sketch for two females.

By Frank Dumont.

CAST OF CHARACTERS.

Bella Sanders,

Estelle Williams, } ..... College Chums

Two schoolmates meet, not having seen each other since leaving college. The talk over old times is very amusing. Naturally, they talk over the good and bad points of other mates, although neither believed in "running down" their neighbors. While in college they had agreed never to marry without consulting the other, but time changes matters and they both fall in love with the same man. Nothing could bring discord to these two loyal friends—but—the man—makes a change, and, womanlike, they abuse each other with the tongue. It turns out that the man marries one of their despised mates, so nothing is left but to console each other by ridiculing the man's choice.

Excellent sketch for two ladies. Can be done in white or black face.

Price, 25 cents, postpaid.

"LITTLE RED RIDING HOOD."

A Modern Musical Burlesque.

By Frank Dumont.

Five Males—Two Females.

There are many burlesques on "Little Red Riding Hood." Mr. Dumont, however, has really outdone all others on this occasion. Ours is an unusual production. We have incorporated all the musical numbers in the book of the play, including the dramatic or cue music. Any musical society can handle this version. Contains excellent speaking parts and abounds in good comedy lines and music. Price, 50 cents, postpaid.

With complete piano score of original vocal and incidental numbers.

We also rent manuscript arrangements for orchestra when desired.

M. WITMARK & SONS

87 Witmark Bldg.

New York

POSITIVELY NO PLAYS EXCHANGED.

CASEY THE INVENTOR

A VAUDEVILLE COMIC

By

HARRY L. NEWTON

Copyright MCMXIV by M. Witmark & Sons

International copyright secured

Published by

M. WITMARK & SONS

Witmark Building, New York

CHICAGO

LONDON

PS 635
Z9 N553

NOTE.—The acting rights of this Sketch are expressly reserved by the Publishers, to whom Theatrical Managers, who wish to produce it, should apply. Amateur representation may be made without such application and without charge.

TMP96-007186

©Cl.D 38028

SEP -2 1914

2401

CHARACTERS.

CASEY—In search of a job.

MRS. FAIRDAY—Seeking a chauffeur.

Time of playing—About fifteen minutes.

SCENE—Handsome parlor in Mrs. Fairday's residence. Table R, on which is a telephone.

---

COSTUMES.

CASEY—Black suit, much the worse for wear; old silk hat; green ties and socks. Speaks with strong Irish brogue.

MRS. FAIRDAY—Handsome afternoon gown.

DIAGRAM OF STAGE.

AUDIENCE.

- L. 1 E.—Left first entrance.
- R. 1 E.—Right first entrance.
- L. U. E.—Left upper entrance.
- C.—Centre of stage.
- R. C.—Right centre of stage.
- L. C.—Left centre of stage.
- C. D.—Centre door.
- D. R. C.—Door right centre.
- D. L. C.—Door left centre.

CASEY THE INVENTOR.

A Vaudeville Comic.

By HARRY L. NEWTON.

---

(At rise of curtain Mrs. Fairday discovered at telephone.)

MRS. FAIRDAY (in phone)—Hello! Hello! Employment office? Oh, this is Mrs. Fairday. My chauffeur has left me, and I want you to send me another. Do you hear me? Chauffeur, I said.

Enter Casey, C. Stands just inside door.

MRS. FAIRDAY (Still speaking in phone)—Hello, Hello!

CASEY—Hello yourself.

MRS. FAIRDAY (In phone, not appearing to notice him)—I can't hear you.

CASEY (Raising voice)—I say, hello yourself, ma'am.

MRS. FAIRDAY (In phone)—Hello! Hello!

CASEY—For the love of Mike, hello!

MRS. FAIRDAY—Say, will you please talk a little louder? I can't hear you at all.

CASEY (Aside)—B'gorry, that woman must be awful deaf. (Puts a hand to his mouth and shouts at her): Hello, hello! Now can yez hear me?

MRS. FAIRDAY (Impatiently into phone)—Please stand closer and speak louder.

CASEY (Aside)—Ah, the poor woman. She has no ears at all, at all. (Moves closer to her.)

MRS. FAIRDAY (Into phone)—That's better.

CASEY (Aside)—I'm glad you like it.

MRS. FAIRDAY (Into phone)—Now speak up; don't be afraid.

CASEY (Puts both hands to mouth and yells)—How do ye do, ma'am?

MRS. FAIRDAY (Lets receiver fall and jumps in surprise to her feet, whirls about on him; he falls to floor)—For goodness sake! Where did you drop from?

CASEY (On floor)—Oh, not far.

MRS. FAIRDAY—You certainly got here quick.

CASEY—Yes, but I got here quicker (Sitting up).

MRS. FAIRDAY—I was just this minute telephoning for you.

CASEY—I'm glad I came. (Slowly rises to feet, with one hand on seat of trousers.)

MRS. FAIRDAY—Won't you sit down?

CASEY—Thank ye kindly, ma'am, I just sat down.

MRS. FAIRDAY (Laughs, then crosses to sofa and sits)—Come and sit here with me.

CASEY (Facial mugging; aside)—B'gorry, I've made a smash on her. (Comedy walk to sofa and sit.)

MRS. FAIRDAY—I hardly expected you so soon.
(Smiles at him.)

CASEY—No, ma'am. I'm more often sooner than expected.

MRS. FAIRDAY—And your name?

CASEY—Michael Casey, ma'am.

MRS. FAIRDAY (Smilingly)—Oh, what matters? A rose by any other name would smell as sweet.

CASEY (Rising angrily)—It's none of your business how I smell!

MRS. FAIRDAY (Smiling and pulling him down)—Don't be angry, Mr. Casey. I was merely quoting. My name is Mrs. Fairday.

CASEY—Well, don't blame me; I never met ye before.

MRS. FAIRDAY (Laughs)—How witty you are.

CASEY—I'm not dipsy. (Aside): B'gorry, she's bughouse!

MRS. FAIRDAY—I suppose you are aware of the purpose of your visit here?

CASEY—Sure, what is it?

MRS. FAIRDAY—Why, you are to be my chauffeur.

CASEY—Am I?

MRS. FAIRDAY—Certainly.

CASEY (Slyly mugging and edging closer to her)—Oh, ma'am, this is so sudden!

MRS. FAIRDAY (Moving away from him)—You needn't begin work so soon, Mr. Casey.

CASEY—Oh, I don't belong to the union. I can work overtime if I want to.

MRS. FAIRDAY—Well, you wait till the whistle blows. Now in the first place, what experience did you ever have?

CASEY—Experience?

MRS. FAIRDAY—Yes, of course. You worked for somebody, did you not?

CASEY—Sure, ma'am. I worked for ten people in one week.

MRS. FAIRDAY—Well, that's going some.

CASEY—Yes, ma'am.

MRS. FAIRDAY—Besides your duties as chauffeur, you will be expected to answer the bell.

CASEY—I thought you said the whistle blew.

MRS. FAIRDAY—No, no; you must answer the bell.

CASEY—What shall I tell the bell.

MRS. FAIRDAY (Impatiently)—You don't tell the bell anything. When visitors come they ring the bell; you go to the door, ask for their card and bring it to me.

CASEY—Oh, is that the gag?

MRS. FAIRDAY—Yes. And now you understand? (Bell rings off C.) There's the bell now.

CASEY (Rising)—All right; I'll go fetch it to ye.

MRS. FAIRDAY—You go and answer the bell.

(Casey does eccentric walk to door C, and exit. Enter with tray. He stubs toe and falls to floor, then scrambles on hands and knees to sofa, gets behind it and peeks out.)

MRS. FAIRDAY—For gracious sake! What is the matter?

CASEY (Cautiously coming from behind sofa and rising to feet)—Did ye see 'em, ma'am?

MRS. FAIRDAY—Why, I saw no one.

CASEY—B'gorry, there was an awful crowd of 'em out there. I killed 25 of them, and the other 45 run.

MRS. FAIRDAY (Looks all about)—Where are the ones you killed?

CASEY—They was ashamed to be seen for lettin' one man kill them, and they all got up and run after the other 55.

MRS. FAIRDAY—Hold on. You said 45 a moment ago. You're telling an untruth.

CASEY—Well, ye ought to be ashamed of yourself, makin' me out a liar for five men.

MRS. FAIRDAY—Well, who was at the door?

CASEY—A man with a letter.

MRS. FAIRDAY—Well, give it to me.

CASEY (Hands her letter)—Yes, ma'am.

MRS. FAIRDAY (Taking letter and tearing open envelope)—Why, it's from my mother.

CASEY (Looking over her shoulder at letter)—Why, so it is. My, what a bad lot of writing.

MRS. FAIRDAY (Indignantly)—How dare you! My mother knows more in a minute than you'll ever know. I won't listen to one word against my mother. Do you understand, sir? My mother was a lady!

CASEY—Your mother was a lady?

MRS. FAIRDAY—Yes, sir; my mother was a lady!

CASEY—Well, what do you think my mother was, an incubator?

MRS. FAIRDAY (Laughs)—Oh, well, we'll not quarrel.

CASEY (Picks up a photograph from table)—B'gorry, look at the dude.

MRS. FAIRDAY—Stop! You mustn't call that gentleman names.

CASEY (Laughs)—B'gorry, he looks like a lobster.

MRS. FAIRDAY—He may be a lobster, but that's all.

CASEY—Well, ain't that enough.

MRS. FAIRDAY—It's very evident to me that you don't know what a lobster is.

CASEY—Maybe not. What's a lobster?

MRS. FAIRDAY—A lobster is a gentleman who has plenty of money, spends it freely and scatters it everywhere.

CASEY (Pulling out empty pockets)—What do you think of that?

MRS. FAIRDAY—What do I think of what?

CASEY—I haven't got a cent. I must be a crab.

MRS. FAIRDAY (Laughs)—Very good, Mr. Casey. Sit down again and tell me something of your past life. What was the most exciting time you ever had?

CASEY (Sits beside her)—Well, ma'am, last summer I went out shootin' ducks. It was quite a warm day, about 248 in the shade.

MRS. FAIRDAY—I should call that rather warm. Did you say 248 in the shade?

CASEY—I'm speakin' nothing but the truth, ma'am.

MRS. FAIRDAY—Why, the very idea! 248 in the shade! You would have been sunstruck.

CASEY—I kept out of the sun, ma'am. I was in the shade all the time.

MRS. FAIRDAY—Well, go ahead. What happened?

CASEY—Well, ma'am, as I was walkin' along I saw a lake, and in this lake was a million and three ducks.

MRS. FAIRDAY—One million and three ducks! Are you quite sure you are telling me the truth?

CASEY—Sure. You don't suppose I'd lie for three ducks, do ye?

MRS. FAIRDAY—No, of course not. "Two hundred and forty-eight in the shade," and a "million and three ducks!" Go ahead.

CASEY—Well, I raised me trusty gun and aimed it at them million and three ducks. And what do you think?

MRS. FAIRDAY—I haven't the least idea. What happened?

CASEY—The weather suddenly changed to 197 below zero. The million and three ducks got their feet frozen in the lake, I fired my gun, and—

MRS. FAIRDAY—Killed the million and three ducks?

CASEY—No, ma'am. They all flew up in the air and took the lake with them.

MRS. FAIRDAY (Laughs)—Oh, come now. You don't expect me to believe that, do you?

CASEY—Sure I do, ma'am. B'gorry, I kin show ye the hole in the ground where the lake was, any-time ye say.

MRS. FAIRDAY (Laughs)—You can certainly tell some interesting experiences, can't you?

CASEY—Yes, ma'am.

MRS. FAIRDAY—Know any more?

CASEY—As many as ye like. One time I was out huntin' bear—

MRS. FAIRDAY (Interrupts)—And you saw five million, I suppose?

CASEY—No, ma'am; only one.

MRS. FAIRDAY—Well, that sounds more like a reasonable amount. Go ahead, I'll listen.

CASEY—Well, ma'am, I came across a bear, and just as I was about to shoot, the bear knocked the gun out of me hands, and I started to run.

MRS. FAIRDAY—Yes, yes, go on.

CASEY—I did then—like the devil. Well, to make me story short, I ran for a hundred miles and ten feet, then I stopped.

MRS. FAIRDAY—Well, I should think you would. Anyone that runs a hundred miles, to say nothing of an extra ten feet, would have an inclination to stop.

CASEY—All of a sudden like, I remembered that I had a knife in me pocket, I pulled out me knife, and—

MRS. FAIRDAY— (Interrupts)—And you killed the bear?

CASEY—No, ma'am, the bear killed me.

MRS. FAIRDAY (Laughs)—Well, you're nothing if not original. What is the next best thing you do besides prevaricate?

CASEY—And what's that?

MRS. FAIRDAY—To prevaricate means to stretch the imagination. To invent, so to speak.

CASEY—Oh, I got ye. Invent. Sure, I'm that, too.

MRS. FAIRDAY—You mean that you are an inventor?

CASEY—I am that same.

MRS. FAIRDAY (Laughs)—Well, what did you ever invent besides fiction?

CASEY—I invented a net for an airship. If the airship should lose its balance and fall, the net would catch it.

MRS. FAIRDAY—Splendid idea! But what holds the net up?

CASEY (Scratches head, puzzled)—B'gorry, I never thought of that, ma'am.

MRS. FAIRDAY—Anything else wonderful you've invented?

CASEY—Sure. I've invented a bullet-proof suit of clothes.

MRS. FAIRDAY—Ah, that sounds more reasonable. Are you sure your suit of clothes is bullet-proof?

CASEY—Sure. I put it on a man and fired twelve shots from me revolver at him, and at the twelfth shot he was still standin'.

MRS. FAIRDAY—Wonderful! But perhaps your bullets didn't hit the man.

CASEY—They didn't. That's the wonderful part of my invention. You can't even hit the clothes.

MRS. FAIRDAY—Oh, you're a humbug.

CASEY—I invented another thing, ma'am.

MRS. FAIRDAY—What is it this time?

CASEY—A compass to put on a dill pickle.

MRS. FAIRDAY—A compass to put on a dill pickle?

CASEY—Yes, ma'am.

MRS. FAIRDAY—And pray, what is the idea of a compass on a dill pickle?

CASEY—When you bite the pickle ye can tell which way it's goin' to squirt.

MRS. FAIRDAY (Laughs)—Well, that's a great idea. Anything else you've invented?

CASEY—Sure.

MRS. FAIRDAY—What is it this time?

CASEY—I invented a button for use on a railroad.

MRS. FAIRDAY—Please explain.

CASEY—Two trains are comin' toward each other on the same track; awful collision bound to occur; I press the button; one train leaps 50 feet in the air, and the other remains on the track.

MRS. FAIRDAY—Yes, but what becomes of the train that leaps 50 feet in the air?

CASEY—I am not responsible for the train after it leaves the track.

Song for Finale.

NOTE.—This Act may also be used as a Talking Act in one, if so desired, by omitting opening.

CURTAIN

PLAYS—SKETCHES AND MONOLOGUES

---

"THE HABITAT'S REVENGE."

A Play in One Act. For 2 Males.

By Gordon Rogers.

A Canadian-French trapper, while recalling how he and his daughter were wronged by a stranger to whom he showed hospitality, twenty years ago, that very night, and plotting revenge, is suddenly visited by apparently the same man, whom he recognizes, but who does not recognize him. Taking the visitor at a disadvantage, the trapper, before wreaking vengeance upon him, discloses his identity, and recites his wrongs to him, recalling how he was robbed of his only daughter, twenty years before, by the handsome stranger.

While the trapper is seeking his child his aged father dies at home, and the daughter afterwards returns to her father's cabin only to die on its threshold. For all this, vows the trapper, the other must die, but just as the much-wronged man is about to put his threat into execution, the younger, realizing that he is the son of the wrongdoer, declares himself just in time to save his life.

A powerful dramatic story, most effectively told, and affording opportunities for the portrayal of a strong character study and of an attractive juvenile part.

Price, 25 cents, postpaid

"THE REHEARSAL."

A Novel Social Entertainment. For 7 Females.

By Effie W. Merriam.

In this most amusing playlet the participants mingle with the audience, thus making the entertainment appear to be entirely extemporaneous. Neither stage, scenery nor special costumes are needed to make it effective; in fact "The Rehearsal" may be acceptably given either in the parlor or on the porch or lawn, and is so arranged that very little memorizing is necessary—a great point in its favor, especially when but little time can be given to preparation.

Price, 25 cents, postpaid

---

M. WITMARK & SONS

87 Witmark Bldg.

New York

POSITIVELY NO PLAYS EXCHANGED.

DRAMATIC SKETCHES.

"THE LAST OF THE CARGILLS."

A Dramatic Scene for 1 Male and 1 Female.

A beautiful story, full of sentiment and refined humor of the Southland. An excellent opportunity for a woman who can portray the old time southern "mammy," and for a man who can depict the old southern lover. A character full of dignity and pathos.

The scene shows the dining-room in an old southern mansion on Christmas day. Outside the snow is falling, inside all is bright and cheerful. George Cargill has the Christmas dinner table laid with covers for all his lost loves, and his best friend; although he alone sits at the board. In a reminiscent mood he recalls all the qualities, good and bad, of his one time sweethearts and of his best friend, and speaks as though they were present.

Finally when "Old Mammy" brings in the turkey she finds that "the last of the Cargills," has gone to join those he loved, in the great beyond.

Price, 25 cents, postpaid

"JOHN CLAYTON, ACTOR!"

A Play in One Act for 2 Males and 1 Female.

This little play might well be called "a modern Garrick," and closely follows the general theme of Garrick, although it is entirely different.

Louise Warren has worshipped at the shrine of John Clayton, a successful actor, and has attended all of his performances, to the consternation and dismay of her relatives and friends.

Finally her father, Colonel Warren, a typical southern gentleman of the old school, calls on Clayton to persuade him to leave the country or in some way to break off the infatuation of his daughter. Louise learns of this visit of her father and also calls at Clayton's rooms to warn him as she fears her father may do him some harm. Clayton promises to disillusion Louise and assumes the disguise of Clayton's servant, and after hiding Colonel Warren, admits Louise to whom he paints Clayton as the most lewd villain.

Finally Colonel Warren appreciates the sterling qualities of Clayton, and the sacrifice he is making, enters the room and tells Louise, Clayton is only acting, and is in reality all she had imagined him to be—her ideal.

He consents to their union, and all ends felicitously.

Price, 25 cents, postpaid

M. WITMARK & SONS

87 Witmark Bldg.

New York

POSITIVELY NO PLAYS EXCHANGED.

FRANK DUMONT'S FAMOUS PLAYS

"The DIALECT COMEDIAN."

By Frank Dumont.

This is a work that has been much called for. Bits of every dialect are presented, giving stories, jokes and gags as they should be told. The little book will assist you greatly. Price, 25 cents, postpaid.

"THE ST. LOUIS FAIR HOTEL."

Sketch by Frank Dumont.

Four Male Characters.

Fun galore in this sketch. It shows an avaricious hotel keeper in operation assisted by his "faithful" man-of-all-work. Price, 25 cents, postpaid.

"MCWADE'S PLATOON."

Burlesque Dialect Police Drill.

FINALE FOR FIRST PART.

By Frank Dumont.

Several nationalities are presented in this drill, giving splendid opportunities for good comedy work. Songs and marches are introduced, making an excellent finale or number for the olio. Something new.

Price, 25 cents, postpaid.

"WHEN WOMEN RULE US."

Burlesque and Court House Scene.

By Frank Dumont.

Twenty Characters.

This satire is arranged specially for ladies wherein all the characters are assumed by them; the two husbands being represented by the ladies also.

This burlesque may be used by gentlemen who, attired in grotesque imitation of female wardrobe and fads, can create any amount of laughter by imitating the gentle sex in mannerisms.

Price, 25 cents, postpaid.

"MY NEW TYPEWRITER."

Sketch by Frank Dumont.

CAST OF CHARACTERS.

Fine A. Silk, a busy agent.....

Mrs. Silk, his wife, assuming disguises of tough girl, old maid and a gushing girly-girly typewriter... ..

A "screaming" sketch for one male and one female. Most excellent for a clever woman who can do character parts. In this sketch the female character is obliged to assume three distinct roles, all of which lead up to complications that are ludicrously funny. Plenty of work for the male character—always busy. "My New Typewriter" is a satire on a popular topic. The theme is carefully worked out.

Price, 25 cents, postpaid.

M. WITMARK & SONS

87 Witmark Bldg.

New York

POSITIVELY NO PLAYS EXCHANGED.

THE VERY LA PLAYS, MONOLOGUES, SI BY HARRY L. NI

LIBRARY OF CONGRESS

0 015 910 050 9

"A Rose of Mexico"

A Comedy-Dramatic Playlet of Mexican Life.

An Original Dramatic Playlet for one Male and one Female, the scene of which is laid in Mexico.

The story is of Carinita, a Mexican girl, recently returned from school in the United States, and Pedro, a Mexican youth who has turned bandit in her absence to secure money enough to ask her to marry him.

"A Pair of Pants"

A Rapid-Fire Talking Act.

This act for straight man and comedian who wants his three dollars, while the other wants his pants, runs riot with fun, gags, absurdities and snappy lines. Plenty of opportunity for good acting.

"A Jack and His Queen"

Comedietta in one act for two Males and one Female.

Jack Windsor, a young bachelor, returned from an eight years' tour of the world, he decides to settle down by marrying his fiancée, Flora Mason. Flora pays a surreptitious visit to Jack's apartments. "Tottie Twinkletoes," a dancer, is to call.

Jack discovers Flora in his rooms and mistakes her for Tottie. Flora keeps up the deception and some very smart dialogue ensues.

"An Invitation to the Ball"

A Comedy Sketch for one Male and one Female.

Plenty of work and good comedy for Mose Johnson, a colored servant, and Birdie Birdsell, the daughter of his master, who has made up her mind to attend a masquerade ball with Mose in attendance.

"Chatter"

A Monologue for Males.

This is a brisk and breezy up-to-date monologue for light or low comedians. It is a whirlwind of comical lines which reach the apex of wit. Used with great success by professional entertainers.

"Down in Paradise Alley"

An East Side Episode for one Male and one Female.

Tells a delightful story of a young college graduate who has fallen in love with Jerry O'Connell, a little East Side street singer, living in Paradise Alley, New York. A charming little playlet in which comedy and pathos are beautifully blended. The specialties introduced throughout the playlet are at the option of the performers.

"Family Secrets"

A Monologue for Rube Girl.

This Rube Girl hands you a laugh every two seconds on a subject which appeals to all, viz., her description of her home and "folks" Up-State.

"Izzy's Vacation"

A summer episode in two scenes.

This is a splendid comedy for Hebrew comedians and lady who can play pert young miss.

Izzy Goldberg is on a vacation in the country and running across Grace Howe, a breezy person who, in the spirit of mischief, accuses Izzy of having followed her.

"Keep Your Eye on the Ball"

A Comedy Sketch for one Male and one Female.

For a clever Irish comedian and leading woman Madame Blavatsky, fortune teller, has money disguises himself as Madame Blavatsky. The complications that follow must be read to be appreciated.

"Meet My Wife"

A Comedy Sketch for two Males and one Female.

George Chamberlain, a hen-pecked husband, may not drink, smoke or have an opinion of his own without his wife's permission. With the arrival of a friend, Percy Hamilton, he enters into a plot to circumvent his wife and eventually becomes master in his own house.

"The Spirit of Captain Kidd"

A Vaudeville Playlet in two scenes.

Dealing with the absurd adventures of Timothy McSorley, an Irish laborer, and Hi Grass, a regular rube, who, on learning of treasure buried by the notorious pirate, Captain Kidd, set out to find it.

This excruciatingly funny playlet is in two scenes. It is one long scream from start to finish.

"Two Girls and Him"

A Comedy classic in one scene for two Females and one Male.

There is a vein of exquisite sentiment running through this little playlet.

Florence and Birdie Featherbottom find themselves stranded. Timothy McDuff hears of their sad plight and spends his earnings to pay their way to the city.

"What Every Woman Thinks She Knows"

A Suffragette Monologue.

This monologue on the suffragette question is a scream from beginning to end. More ludicrous "patter" could not well be imagined. There is a dash of brilliant wit and humor that cannot fail to please.

ANY OF THE ABOVE 25 CENTS EACH

M. WITMARK & SONS

86 WITMARK BUILDING

New York